Check out the link above and really take the time to read it. While you may say that you have nothing to hide, would you let any person read anything that you do or say online at any time? If the answer is no, then you do have something to hide and protect and that is your privacy. Just remember anything you say can be used against you at some time in the future, so why take that chance and protect yourself now.

Here is an article about VPN's. I currently use 2 VPN clients (I use 2 because I have multiple devices to protect)
