This is another podcast from one of the many podcasts that I like to listen to. This one is from the I Had to Say It podcast.

The WEF and stretching your food budget

Times are tough all over. Food shortages, supply chain issues, bird flu, and a bunch of elitists who fly around in private jets getting ready to lecture us on climate change and plot depopulation. In the meantime I talk about some things you can do to make things a little better for you and your family, and some new features I will be adding to the show's website in the immediate future.
