This is another podcast from one of the many podcasts that I like to listen to. This one is from the I Had to Say It podcast.

Labor Day Division

It's a short one this week folks. As we head into the last holiday of the season here in the US the politicians are doubling down on driving division in this country. Everyone is talking about how great this country is because of the blue collar workers and what not, while still trying to turn the middle class against it self, and it's a little frustrating. SO I vented about it some. Hope everyone had a great long weekend, or if you were at work I hope the people enjoying the long weekend didn't make it too bad for you.
