This is another podcast from one of the many podcasts that I like to listen to. This one is from the I Had to Say It podcast.

The Culture War and Deliberate Division

In this episode I touch on a doctor that gave out falsified covid documentation at the request of his patients rather than give the jab to a bunch of children, and how he is being brought up on federal charges now. Also I go off on a tear about why I think this culture war nonsense is actually just the most recent way that the few control the masses.
